HAMMER STRAIT FORTS

Allied Fleet Will Reach Constantinople Before Easter Is Prediction of Commander.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, March 13.—It is apparent to close observers that the situation for Italy is daily becoming more complicated. The argument is being made with persistence that she must soon make a definite decision as to what course she will follow. The case of Greece is being referred to; her assistance, even if offered, might not now be accepted by the allies and the same thing might happen in the case of Italy. Some Italian observers believe if she proposed to join the allies, when her help was no longer necessary.

Consequently, a certain section of the public is today urging the government to throw in its lot with the allies while there is yet time and opportunity.

Admitting that Austria-Hungary could be induced to give up her provinces inhabited by Italians as for instance Trent and Trieste, which is considered most unlikely, this would still not be enough for Italy according to arguments of those who would like to see their country fighting on the side of France, England and Russia.

The possible forcing of the Dardanelles by the naval forces of the allies, is regarded here as a prelude to the partition of Turkey. It is imperative, according to this faction, that Italy has a voice in any such political division in order to claim her share.

Austria's Position.—London, March 13.—It is reported in Rome that Austria has refused to discuss the cession of Trieste to Italy, and is willing to give only a small part of the province of Trent. Italy is said, has completed military preparations "for any eventuality."

Success Before Easter.—Admiral Garden, commanding the British fleet operating against the Dardanelles, has expressed the opinion that the allies will be able to hammer their way through the straits before Easter, according to an Athens dispatch to the Journal.

The bombardment of the Dardanelles was resumed yesterday, Friday, morning by the French and British battleships, and the German gunboats. The attack from the sea, from the Matia from Athens. Seventy small mine sweepers are reported to be continuing their efforts to clear the mine field under the direction of officers representing the British and French navies.

"The allied fleet," says the Matia, "still has eight or ten forts and a certain number of coast batteries to reduce, and the general opinion is they will enter the straits before Easter, within a fortnight if the land forces co-operating with them can also continue their advance."

Long Range Bombardment.—The long range bombardment of the Dardanelles fortifications were resumed yesterday, Thursday, by the allied fleet, according to an Athens dispatch to the Havas Agency. No information has been obtained as to the result of the operation.

The warships, the dispatch says, did not enter the strait, and their object seemed to be to prevent the Turks by long distance fire from repairing certain forts which had been damaged.

Week End Report.—Dardanelles, Sunday, March 7, via Constantinople. March 8, via Berlin. March 9, via London. March 10, via London. The fire today of the British ships upon the Dardanelles forts was scattered and virtually without effect. From the point of vantage occupied by the Associated Press correspondents on shore British shells had been seen falling wide of the mark. During the early afternoon of today (March 7), the Turkish fire forced a British battleship in the Gulf of Saros to retreat.

White Star Liner In Port With Heavy Load of Mail.—Dock Strike at Liverpool.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 13.—The White Star liner Arabic, flying the British flag, reached New York today from Liverpool with 537 passengers and 264 sacks of mail. It is the largest consignment ever sent from England to America.

Passengers said torpedo boat destroyers accompanied the vessel from the mouth of the Mersey for out to sea to protect them from attacks by German submarines.

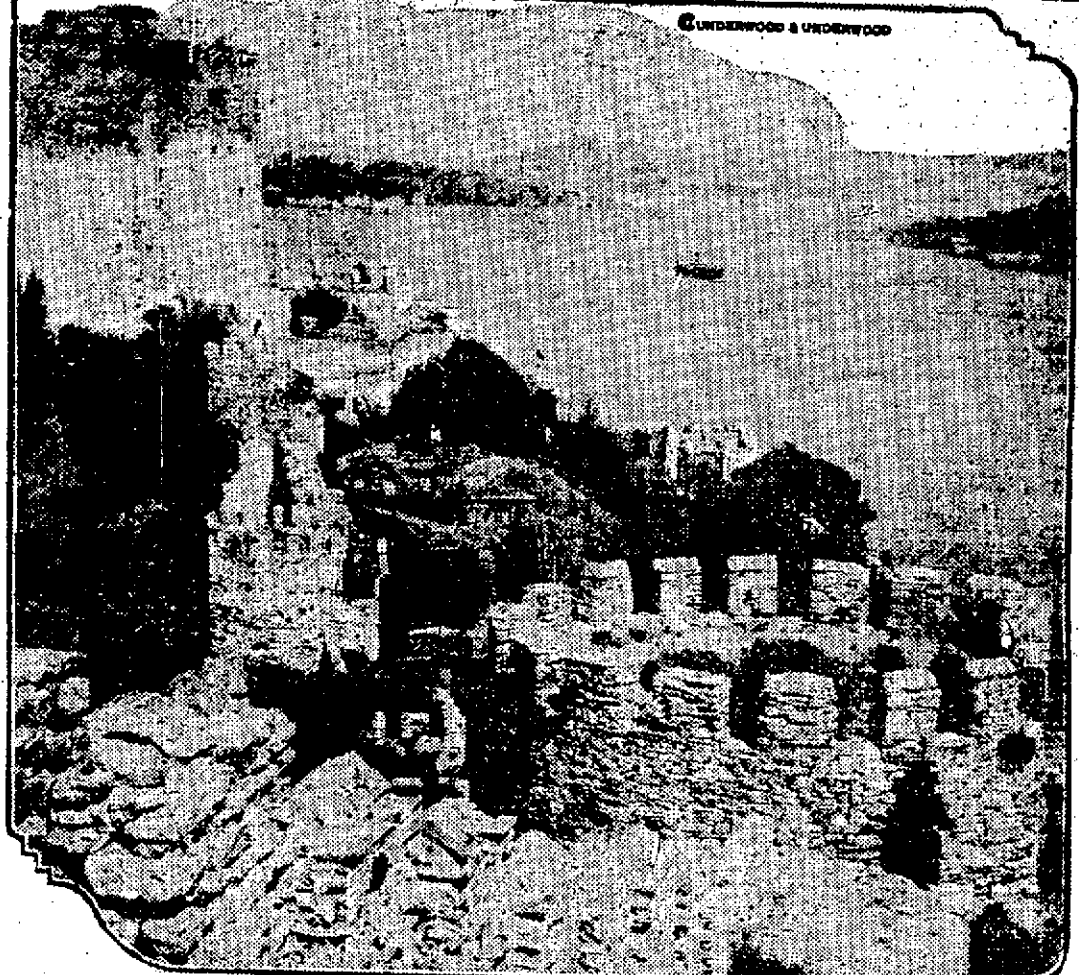

More than fifty steamers were tied up at Liverpool, the Arabic's passengers said, because of the dock laborers' strike. The departure of the Arabic was delayed by the strike.

BEFORE FIRE OF ALLIED FLEET TURK FORTIFICATIONS CRUMBLE

"Seven Towers," guarding passage between Europe and Asia, Constantinople.

Turk fortifications like these are rapidly tumbling before the terrific fire of the allied fleets in the Dardanelles. It had been presumed by the Turks that these fortifications were impregnable. Their guns, however, have a shorter range than have some of the guns on the English battleships. This reduces the forts almost to uselessness.

SUBMARINE FLEET
CLOSE MANEUVERS

Two Units Stationed in Panama Canal Waters on Pacific Side Finish Trip.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Panama, March 13.—Two units of the submarine fleet stationed in Panama Canal waters in conjunction with the coast artillery corps have just completed a series of war maneuvers at the Pacific entrance to the canal with the view of testing the efficiency of the shore batteries on the fortified islands, the two submarine units and the mine layer Gen. J. M. Schofield, which towed a number of barges, were supposed to represent a hostile fleet in an attempt to run past the shore batteries and to evade the mine field that had been planted as an additional safeguard.

The approach of the hostile fleet was observed from the land by means of the huge searchlights which have already been placed in position. The submarines, however, by the mines over which they were supposed to have made it rather uncomfortable for the batteries. Part of the hostile fleet was "destroyed" by the mines being discharged from the batteries when the ships were directly over them.

Immediately after the arrival here of Brigadier-General Clarence G. Edwards, U. S. A., who commands the Panama Canal troops, much activity began to be displayed in military matters. A number of practice hikes into the interior have been made and others are contemplated for the purpose of familiarizing the infantry regiments with the surrounding country. It is now planned to send a complete regiment with full equipment through the jungle on a long hike into the Chiriqui country along the Pacific coast.

The maneuvers undertaken recently by the coast artillery and submarines are for the purpose of demonstrating to ascertain what additional fortifications and armament will be needed, so that proper recommendations may be made to the fortifications board when it comes to the canal zone some time next month. It is said that a number of vital changes will be recommended.

It is anticipated that when Major-General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., commander of the department of the east arrives in the Canal zone, he will have placed before him several plans for housing the large number of troops that will be stationed on the canal. The most important of these will be the detailed plan for the permanent military post, where the three infantry regiments will be stationed.

NEW APOSTOLIC DELGATE
IN CHARGE OF AUSTRALIA.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sydney, March 13.—Manager Bonaventura Cerretti, who for nine years occupied an important office in connection with the Apostolic delegation to Washington, has arrived in Sydney to assume the post of Apostolic Delegate to the Roman Catholic Church to Australia. His selection was made by the late Pope Pius X, who established the delegation in order to place Australia on a level with other countries in this respect.

Inasmuch as Australia is so far removed from the Vatican Manager Cerretti will be charged with the settlement of all ordinary diocesan and parochial affairs, although all grave and difficult problems will be referred to Rome.

Houses of Ill Repute, Run by Women, Must Close For Year and Sell Furniture.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, March 13.—The Linley law enacted by the last legislature for the governing of vice conditions in Wisconsin was today declared constitutional by Judge Williams in circuit court.

The ruling made through a dismissal of a demurrer, presented to the court by attorneys for an alleged keeper of resort against complaint of T. L. Harrington together with the statement that the place owned and run by the woman was used for immoral purposes and should be closed for one year and furniture sold, according to provision of the Linley law.

SPECIAL TRAIN BRINGS
FORT ATKINSON PEOPLE TO SHOW LAST EVENING

"Potash & Perlmuter" was not only a hit to Janesville theatergoers, but to the people from neighboring cities, as shown by the packed house last night, and from the fact that a special train was chartered from Fort Atkinson, carrying one hundred people to this city for that production. The special train left Janesville for the Fort about midnight.

COUNT WITTE DIES;
RUSSIA OWES MUCH TO ABLE STATESMAN

First Russian Premier, Diplomat and Transportation Expert Expires, Says Petrograd Dispatch.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, March 13.—Count Sergius Juliusch Witte, Russia's first prime minister, died last night, says a Petrograd dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company.

Count Witte, who was born June 29, 1849, at Tiflis, was one of the Russian plenipotentiaries at Portsmouth, N. H., in the negotiations for peace with Japan in 1905. He afterwards was made count and appointed president of the new ministry, but retired in 1906 and held no important position after that time.

Man of Great Capacity.—Count Witte was regarded as in some respects one of the most remarkable men his country had produced, but his reputation was even greater abroad than at home.

Throughout his career, during which he accomplished much for Russia, he had many and powerful enemies, although his great ability and remarkable capacity for work never was questioned. Regardless of the fact that as a statesman, his chief fame in Russia rests upon his development of manufacturing industries, the extension of the railroad system and the placing of the monetary system upon a gold basis.

After his graduation from the University of Odessa, Witte entered the railroad service in the shipping department. He mastered the question of tariff rates and his advancement was rapid. He first attracted attention at the capital, during the Russo-Turkish war by his administrative capacity he displayed in the movement of army supplies.

Makes Rapid Advance.—He went to Petrograd in 1873 and was given an increasingly responsible posts in the railroad service. Alexander III. appointed him minister of railroads and communication in 1892, and afterwards minister of finance. It was then he began to develop his great scheme for the creation of home manufactures and the extension of Russia's railroad system, which eventually took the Siberian road to the Pacific.

In his efforts along these lines Witte used every power of the state. He gave subvention to railroads, ordered until facilities and miles were running full blast. Then he had the state take over the private railroads, the state treasury guaranteeing the bonds to do all this. He borrowed immense sums in France. Under a plea of regulating the liquor traffic, he had the state take over the vodka business of the empire, thus vastly increasing the revenue of the government. His crowning achievement was regarded, however, as the establishment of the gold standard.

"Arbutus Grove No. 55" Organized at Meeting Last Night.

The auxiliary of the Woodmen of the World, the Woodmen's circle, organized last evening in W. O. W. hall, on East Milwaukee street, to be called "Arbutus Grove No. 55, Woodmen's Circle." Last evening was their first meeting. This grove has been instituted by Deputy Organizer Mrs. James L. Harper of this city with a large membership.

A large class will be received at their next meeting. After the business meeting a very pleasing program was given, as follows: Piano and violin selections by Foster Brothers; address of welcome, Mrs. Edith Evans; response, Mrs. George H. Harmons; Recitation, Miss Sadie Coll; Song, the Misses Margaret and Fannie Gardner; Reading, Ernest Drake; Song, by the members of the Grove; Reading, Mrs. W. M. Smith; Selection, by the Aker Mandolin club; Piano solo, Mable Bryant. Closing song, entitled "This Grove has come to stay," by the members of the order. An address was given by the state manager, J. V. Croft, which was much enjoyed. Captain Bert Hill, with his team of Foresters, demonstrated the seating of the evening was spent in dancing and social time, and refreshments were served. A number of ladies came from Beloit to attend the meeting and all went away feeling that they had been royally entertained by this new order.

Attention Odd Fellows and Rebekahs: The joint committee of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14 and America Rebekah Lodge No. 26, announce for their next monthly entertainment, a card party and social dance for members and their friends, on Monday evening, March 15th. All members are requested to be present. A short lodge session will be held, after which the evening will be given up to dancing. Geo. G. Waterman, chairman joint committee.

DEFENDS ACTION OF EITEL'S COMMANDER
IN SINKING VESSEL

Ambassador Von Bernstorff Makes Statement Relative to Destruction of the Wm. P. Frye.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 13.—Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, in discussion with official today concerning the sinking of the American ship, Captain Thierthens of the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Frederick. He contended that he acted under the declaration of London, which was the only guide he had to the disposition of prizes. For that reason the ambassador argued he had a right to sink the Frye as its cargo of wheat was consigned to "order" and destined to a fortified port of the enemy.

So long as there was no port to which he could take his prize, he had a right, not only the cargo, but the vessel itself.

The ambassador argued that the command of the Prinz Eitel when he sank the Frye did not know that the German prize court on August 5 had held that the mere fact that a merchant ship was bound for an enemy port was not sufficient proof that the cargo was destined for the enemy.

The case of the Frye, however, the ambassador said, would have to be settled in accordance with international law because of the present status of the declaration of London. "We do not intend," he said, "to disregard any of the judicial niceties in the case."

Moved Into Shipyard.—Newport News, March 13.—Splice and Span in appearance after she had brushed the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Frederick moved today from the dry dock where she had lain since yesterday, into a shipyard preparatory to undergoing repairs.

Paris, March 13.—Much interest is manifested here in the sinking of the American sailing ship, William P. Frye, by the German auxiliary cruiser, Prinz Eitel Frederick. The newspapers all give prominence to the incident and express the opinion that it will still further open the eyes of Americans to German war methods, thus disposing them to react more favorably than they otherwise might, the replies of France and England to the American memorandum on the Franco-British note.

COURT DECIDES FOR CASH REGISTER CO.

Cincinnati, March 13.—The U. S. circuit court of appeals today reversed the lower court in the case of the government against John H. Patterson, president and twenty-six other officials of the Cash Register Co. of Dayton, O., and remanded the case to the district court for new trial. Mr. Patterson and his associates were found guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust law and were sentenced to serve prison term and were fined.

Formal motion that he be so returned, was made by Thaw's lawyers. Justice Page announced that he would hear arguments on this motion Monday afternoon, March 15. In the meantime Thaw was remanded to the Tombs.

TO U. S. CENSUS JOB

Will Have Jurisdiction Over Rock and Adjacent Counties—Effective at Present.

George Ihrig, former proprietor of the Smoke Shop on East Milwaukee street, has relinquished his interest here to assume the position of deputy census collector. Mr. Ihrig will be in charge of all census statistics of Rock and adjacent counties. The appointment is effective at once. He has been in Milwaukee for several days receiving instructions from the general agent of the federal census but also the industrial and other features as machinery, cattle and stock, etc.

HIS COUNTRY IS ON VERGE OF WAR

King of Bulgaria.

Prime Minister Radslavoff of Bulgaria is reported to have had some difficulties with King Ferdinand because of the former's insistence that Bulgaria should invade Turkey without delay and seize Adrianople. King Ferdinand and his advisers declared that such a policy was too venturesome and that the nation could not afford, at this time, to antagonize Germany and Austria. According to dispatches reaching London from all the Balkan states, the people are clamoring for war, and hostilities are expected to break out this spring.

HIS ESCAPE

JURY LABORS ALL NIGHT IN EFFORT TO ARRIVE AT VERDICT.

CO-DEFENDANTS FREED

Four Men Held for Conspiracy in Connection With Thaw's Flight From Matteawan, Also Acquitted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 13.—The Thaw jury returned a verdict acquitting Thaw and the other four defendants charged with conspiracy to effect his escape from Matteawan asylum August 17, 1913, the count upon which he was brought back to New York from New Hampshire. Roger Thompson, Richard J. Butler, Eugene Duffy and Thomas Flood, the four men who assisted him in his spectacular flight by automobile from Matteawan to Canada, likewise were acquitted. The jury which acquitted Thaw had labored all night and until 12:30 o'clock this noon in an effort to reach a verdict.

As soon as a verdict was announced Thaw was given into the custody of Sheriff Griffenhagen of New York county. The four co-defendants were discharged.

A motion to have Thaw committed to Matteawan asylum as an insane person was made by Deputy Attorney Cook immediately after the jury rendered its verdict. The motion was combatted by Thaw's counsel, who announced that inasmuch as Thaw was brought here on the conspiracy charge and found not guilty, he should be returned to the state of New Hampshire as a sane man.

Formal motion that he be so returned, was made by Thaw's lawyers. Justice Page announced that he would hear arguments on this motion Monday afternoon, March 15. In the meantime Thaw was remanded to the Tombs.

BELOIT ITALIAN WILL BE TAKEN TO WAUPUN

Jesse Earle, clerk of the circuit court for Rock county, issued a commitment this afternoon for the apprehension of Philip Lougidge, a Beloit Italian, who was taken to Waupun to serve a year's term on the charge of making threats. The papers authorizing the arrest of the Italian were received this morning from the state supreme court and the commitment was delivered to Sheriff Del Chamberlain this afternoon.

Lougidge was convicted of the minor count in the circuit court and was released on bonds during a stay of execution. He could take an appeal to the supreme court, but a higher court affirmed the sentence. Recently trouble arose over the bond, a relative of the convicted man seeking his release and the commitment was delivered to Sheriff Del Chamberlain this afternoon.

TEUTONS HAVE SUFFERED
NO MORE THAN ALLIES
SAYS A VIENNA REPORT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Vienna, March 13.—In the official reports issued by the city of Vienna as to conditions here during wartime it is pointed out today that German and Austria-Hungary, through the war, have suffered economically no more than the allies and the neutral powers. As proof thereof the fact is given that savings bank deposits in 1914 decreased only 27,000,000 crowns and that the money market continues to be extraordinarily easy. The supply of foodstuffs during January in general was sufficient although various articles of necessity showed an increase in price. Only the flour situation has not improved, owing to the rising high prices for wheat and flour in Vienna and other communities. The city of Vienna therefore has secured a large supply of corn for the needs of the Viennese population and in order to have this unpopular article of food meet more easily with a favorable reception by the population, recipes for the use of corn flour are printed on the reverse of the street car tickets and in such manner as seems appropriate.

There was no shortage of meat during January. The supply of meat was even greater than usual, considering the demands of the cauning factories working for the military. The most important articles of food for January show relatively unimportant price increases as compared with January of last year.

Newspapers
Sell the Goods

Without any other help except a small advertisement in one newspaper, a manufacturer increased sales in the city from 50 to 1000 cases. This was a food product and this increase was made in half a dozen years. In other cities where he uses two or more newspapers and does sales work his increases are so large as to be almost unbelievable. A manufacturer has done any other with a good product can do. Manufacturers wanting more information on this subject are invited to address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

A TREASURY DEFICIT STARTLES THE STATE

FORMER ADMINISTRATION HAS PLAYED HAVOC WITH FUNDS.

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

With Philipp at the Helm, Bob Acres Sees Hopes for a Safe and Sound Business Administration of State Affairs.

(By Bob Acres.)
This is one of a series of articles on Wisconsin politics written exclusively for the Gazette.

Madison, March 13.—For a first class little sensational breeder, that legislative investigating committee is a peacemaker. The unearthing of all sorts of skeletons in the progressive closets and I should not be surprised if before they get through they will have solved the old problem of "who hit Billy Patterson" or "who stole Charley Ross." As it is they are uncovering so much absolute rottenness that it is becoming nauseating to read of the mismanagement of the previous reform administrations who posed as the people's friends.

For many years the reformers and it took a good sound business administration to uncover their peccadilloes which even reached into millions of dollars in the aggregate. The discovery of the twenty thousand dollars worth of print paper stored in various warehouses throughout the city was thought to be sufficient to show the reformers might lay claim to the finding of huge boxes of envelopes printed years ago, in the segment of the capital, the tons of published books and reports, worth only the price of junk, was bad enough, but when the fact became known that the state faced a deficit of some two million dollars June 30th, then the limit is about reached.

Figure it all out for yourself. The reform legislature of 1913 passed appropriations amounting to some four millions odd thousand dollars, for specific purposes. Building at the state university, highway purposes and for conducting the state government. Now, instead of levying the taxes to meet this four million dollars, the secretary of state saw fit, undoubtedly acting under orders from someone higher up, to decide to remit the state tax. It was a fine political move, but it did not still the talk about high taxes and the business administration of Philipp swept into office. It failed in its purpose of defeating Philipp, but it left this problem for the new administration. Nice prospect, is it not?

No one told the Philipp administration about it. Oh, no! If they had they would have seen the whole scheme to discredit the present administration with the people. Point out the deficit and the empty treasury and ask if that was reducing the taxes when the tax collection day comes along. Talk about gentlemen's agreement, why, it would not go by that name in some localities where you know it. It was about as dirty a political trick as could have been suggested. It was worthy of the minds of the men who have so long deluded the people of the state into thinking that their interests were being safeguarded, but their money was being expended. You remember the fate of Al Babi and the forty thieves, do you not? Well!!!

In all this rotten condition right in the capital, the various departments, the university has received scant attention and a separate investigating committee is to be appointed to look into this institution that has so long escaped the very vitals of the state treasury. Has educated the people at the expense of the taxpayers, in the folders of advanced learning, managed the state government by installing university men into the tax office, into various departments, so that the taxes might be increased and the total of the one mill tax to the state verily thus materially made greater. However, there is a bill in for cutting off this one mill tax and we hope for something to drop when the investigating committee gets busy.

Washington, I have seen it. I have seen it on previous Wisconsin legislatures, but not so openly and brazenly as this year, hence I speak of it. It is a shame that Wisconsin representatives assembled are not big enough to withstand such demands and vote as they consider right and proper. When you take into consideration that organized labor is but a small portion of the state's population it is really surprising. Some men are big enough to withstand the demands, but they usually fall for the demands sooner or later.

There has been much criticism of the senate in turning down the resolutions which referred to the efforts of President Wilson to put an end to the European war, but considering the fact that a good portion of the population of Wisconsin is of German extraction, this is not surprising. Not going into the merits of the European war personally, I think the senate did just right, and that the members, regardless of the fact that many are of German parentage, voted the convictions on the matter. However, the influence of the German-Americans with that membership of the various branches of organized labor and then my remarks in a previous paragraph appear absurd. They are not afraid of good, honest hard working, voting citizens, but they are afraid of the threats of the walking delegate strike.

By the way, did you know that sixty years ago Wisconsin really took the first steps that led to the great civil war? That Wisconsin really was the first state to defy the federal government and assert the doctrine of state rights and all over a poor fugitive slave named Joshua Glover. Well, if you did not perhaps it is not out of place to call your attention to it right here. It is really part of the political history of the state and had much to do with the organization and success of the republican party.

Joshua Glover, an escaped slave was arrested at Racine and brought to Milwaukee by the officers. Mr. Booth, then a Milwaukee newspaper man, began the agitation which resulted in the defiance of federal authority. Glover was brought to Milwaukee, but writs of habeas corpus were served on the sheriff and marshal, and Glover was rushed to Waukegan, the stronghold of the anti-slavery forces. From there he escaped to Canada by way of the underground railway.

Booth was subsequently arrested, but when the sentence was so much in his favor that his release was obtained. In 1858 and 1859 he was arrested and spent a year in jail until pardoned by president Buchanan.

I call attention to this because I want to impress upon my readers that there were men who did and did not then and then up at Madison there is a Governor who is doing and doing a lot more than you think for he is fighting the fight of the people of the state. His committees are unearthing this or that problem for him to solve. He is best by recommendations from all elements: woman suffragettes, anti-woman suffragettes, railroad men wanting a much needed increase in passenger rates, the university bringing this or that pressure to bear upon him to alter their cause and the people, the taxpayers watching and waiting for moves, confident that he will fulfill their expectations, (which I am sure he will) and give the state a sound business administration.

By the way, all this week there has been the talk that the legislature was to return to the state this coming week to line up the legislators true to his cause, protect some of the favorite interests and otherwise try and throw a monkey wrench into the Philipp machinery. In fact, some of the ultra reformers got quite excited when they talked about things, but that whole belief of the legislature's return to the state is a complete hoax. Now comes word that La Follette is going on a lecturing tour of four or five weeks before returning home. Say, do you suppose he will disclose disclosures of mismanagement under the reform administrations had anything to do with the change in his plans?

GOOD PRICES HOLD IN THE HOG MARKET

Prices Are a Shade Higher This Morning Although Demand Was Not So brisk—Steady.

Chicago, March 13.—Trade in the hog market this morning was not so active as Friday, but prices held strong, marking up five cents. Sheep and cattle were favored with steady trade, receipts being just as usual for Saturday. Quotations follow:

Cattle—Receipts 200; market steady; native steers 7.50@8.75; western steers 5.00@7.30; cows and heifers 3.00@7.00; calves 6.25@9.75.

PLAY GENEVA QUINT AT EIGHT O'CLOCK

Y. M. C. A. Basketball Tossers Ready for Hard Tussle With Lake City Men—Confident of Victory.

Tonight at eight o'clock the Y. M. C. A. basketball five, composed of Captain John Brown, Walter, George Brown, Booth, Mott, French and Shattuck will meet the champion Geneva City team in the new association gymnasium. The contest will be staged promptly at eight so as to give the spectators plenty of time to get to the little game at the rink auditorium.

The Y team is confident of winning tonight, even though they are to oppose a hard and fast five. The visitors have won six and lost but one game this season. The ladies are especially invited to this contest tonight.

Tickets for the big Y. M. C. A. game only 10c. The team needs your support. Come out and give them a boost. Bring a friend. Tickets most cordially invited. Advertisement.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John S. Crall, an old and respected resident of Center, died at her home yesterday afternoon after an illness of six weeks. She is survived by an aged husband and one adopted daughter, Mrs. Charles Culeland of Goldfield, Iowa, and four grandchildren. Hester Ann Adams was born Oct. 9, 1839, in Indiana, and came to Green county with her parents in 1841. She was united in marriage to John S. Crall on the 12th of February, 1865, and excepting a year spent in Kansas has made Center her home ever since. Funeral will be Sunday at 2 p. m. at the home. Rev. Cummings of this city will officiate. Burial in Center cemetery.

The Janesville club will shoot for the Gilbert trophy on Tuesday, March 16th, and a special invitation is extended to the trap shooters of the county to enter the event. The traps will be fitted for the tourney at the club's grounds on North Washington street and a big field is certain to compete for the cup.

"That Paige Is A Great Car"

DO YOU KNOW why people say that—why YOU yourself say it? Perhaps, you have heard that in actual sales Paige cars led every American-made motor car at all the Automobile Shows this season. Perhaps, you know that the Paige "Six-46," a big seven-passenger "Six" for $1385, has proved easily the most popular "Six"—at any price—on the market this season. Perhaps, you have heard that at the new price, $1075, the Paige "Four-36" has already dominated the "Four" field this season. Perhaps, you know that Paige Sales have increased 61 per cent over the corresponding period of last year; that the huge Paige factory is working 24 hours a day to fill Paige orders. These things are proofs that the Paige car—"Six" or "Four"—IS "a great car," as you say.

BUT WHY?

Let us see. Do you know of any other "Six" that has the beauty and distinction of design, the seven-passenger comfort of the Paige; the power and flexibility of the Paige-Continental motor, the Gray & Davis starting and lighting system, the Bosch magneto, the Rayfield carburetor, the Paige-cantilever spring suspension, the general elegance and yet economy of the Paige "Six"—at a price within $200 of the Paige "Six" price?

It is good to know that Paige cars are at the pinnacle now in popularity, sales, national confidence. But we want the world to know!

Come and see and drive these two wonderful Paige cars. We'll leave the verdict to you.

PLAN TO INTEREST ROCK COUNTY BOYS IN GOOD HIGHWAYS

COMMERCIAL CLUB COMMITTEE HAS PLAN TO SECURE CO-OPERATION OF FARM LADS.

MEET NEXT SATURDAY

Expect Two Hundred Will Hear Address by Chief Engineer Hirst and Chief Inspector Doneghay.

At a good roads conference called for next Saturday at the court house, efforts will be made to interest two hundred or more Rock county farmers in the matter of highway improvement. The plan is being furthered by the good roads committee of the Commercial club composed of George S. Parker, David McLeay, Thornton Reed, E. A. Kemmerer, Hugh Craig, I. P. Fortendyke and L. A. Markham.

At a meeting of the committee yesterday the main points of the plan were outlined and arrangements made for the conference a week from today after taking the matter up with County Highway Commissioner C. Moore, who expressed his hearty approval of the project. Mr. Moore had previously been State Engineer Hirst and Chief Inspector Doneghay of the highway commission, who addresses to the contractors, road-builders and township supervisors of the county and was agreeable to the suggestion that the boys be invited to attend the meeting in the afternoon. Matters of special interest to the road-builders will be taken up at the morning session at ten o'clock.

"We believe that the cause of good roads in Rock county can be furthered in a large measure by creating an interest among the boys," said Mr. Parker in speaking of the project today. "The Commercial club has considered the proposition for some time and now seems to be an opportune moment for action. We are arranging to offer smaller prizes in each township for the boys who show the greatest amount of interest in keeping up the roads in front of their fathers' homes, and next fall it is probably that an automobile trip to Madison and back can be scheduled for all the boys who have done road work during the season. It is possible that a good roads club will be organized and each boy will be given a shingle or a sign indicating that he is enrolled in the cause. This may be placed on the gate post in front of his home as notice to the public that the boy who lives there is enterprising and public-spirited."

Mr. Moore stated today that the matter of highway maintenance had been a problem in the past and that the aid of the farmer boys might be a very satisfactory solution. All the boys who enlisted in the work would receive the usual compensation for their services. Prominent among the work which the boys could take care of would be the operation of the road drags, especially on the portions of the state system which have not been constructed.

Mr. Moore stated that the repair fund available this year would probably be $15,000. Of course all of the maintenance work cannot be done by the boys, but a large part of it may fall within their capabilities. Mr. Moore called attention to the fact that a bill is now pending in the legislature which will allow the highway commissioner to take charge of the repair work on such pieces of road that are still to be constructed, but which are a part of the state and county system. Another bill, if it becomes a law, will make the entire automobile license fund available to the county where it is collected, instead of 75 per cent as heretofore.

Y. M. C. A. MIXED TEAM OF INTERMEDIATES AND JUNIORS BEAT FORT FIVE

A mixed team of basketball terrors, selected from the Junior and intermediate divisions of the Y. M. C. A., won decisively this morning at eleven o'clock over the St. Peter's Episcopal church team of Fort Atkinson. The final score was 39 to 22. The summary follows:

Y. M. C. A.: Kober and Cassidy, forwards; Welsh, center; Horn, Davey and M. Davis, guards.
Fort Atkinson: Gross, H., Godfrey, H., Stiegel, C., Young, H., Heider, R., Field, G., Welsh, S., Kober, S., Cassidy, D., Davey, S., Siegel, S., Young, J., Heider, J.
Free Throws: Kober 1, Siegel 6 out of 7 trials.
Referee—Hemming, Marquette.

The game tonight effects the championship of Southern Wisconsin.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS LOOK OVER LOWLANDS

Members of the board of public works this morning investigated conditions in Monterey, from the Calorie factory north to the fire station, and the "hill" near here. Drainage trouble is experienced here, and the commission seek to make a method of trouble, which has caused the flooding of the house cellars in the past. A report will be made at one of the board meetings.

Return game tonight with the Reserves for the championship.

JURY EXONERATES EDGERTON DENTIST

Returns Verdict in Favor of Dr. Meyers in Assault and Battery Suit Brought by Betty Bruhn.

After deliberating for nearly three hours this morning the circuit court jury in the case of Betty Bruhn against Dr. F. C. Meyers, both Edgerton residents, in an action for damages for alleged assault and battery, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant completely exonerating him of the charges made in complaint and testimony.

There remain but three jury cases to be tried at the present court in all of which the jury has been drawn and the trial dates named. The first case, Moore against Gower, is to be tried on March 22 at two o'clock p. m.; the second case is scheduled for March 23 and the last for March 25. Judge Grimm will be at the court chambers next Tuesday to take up matters which may be ready for his consideration at that time.

EXPECT FORTY BOYS ON TRIP TO MADISON

ROCK COUNTY CORN GROWERS WILL ATTEND SHORT COURSE GRADUATION PROGRAM.

WILL BE CLUB GUESTS

Janesville Commercial Club Conducts Excursion for Youths Who Completed Contest Last Year.

More than forty boys who completed the work in the Janesville Commercial club's corn contest of 1914 will be the club's guests on an excursion to Madison on Thursday, March 18th, arrangements for which have been arranged by the special committee in charge. This is the day that the graduation exercises for students of the university short course in agriculture will be held, and the Rock county delegation has been especially invited to attend.

Secretary W. J. McDowell, Prof. A. B. West, L. A. Markham, H. H. Bliss, J. A. Craig and other members of the Commercial club will accompany the boys on the trip. Letters notifying the boys have been sent out entitled to go will be able to start with the delegation which leaves on the St. Paul train departing from this city at 7:50 Thursday morning.

In the case of some of the boys who live near Evansville, it has been arranged that they shall take the Northwestern train, but it is advisable for all who can possibly do so to come to Janesville and start with the main delegation.

Secretary McDowell will make arrangements with the secretary of the Madison Chamber of Commerce to have automobiles meet the train and transport the boys on a trip about the city, ending at the university grounds. They will then attend the graduation exercises, where they will enjoy addresses by some of the best agricultural authorities of the middle west. A visit to the new state capitol will be made before leaving Madison late in the afternoon.

Following is the list of boys who are eligible for the trip:

Milton Anderson, Durand, Ill.; Wesley Stoney, Clinton; David Dean, Avalon; Harry Jagger, Janesville, Rte. 6; Hugh Fisher, Janesville, Rte. 7; Hugh Fisher, Evansville, Rte. 17; John Cown, Hanover; Frank Moore, Beloit; George Austin, Janesville; Leonard Hutchins, Milton; Harry McKewan, Janesville, Rte. 1; Merrill McCartney, Milton; Paul Kirland, Avalon; Julius Jacobson, Clinton; Elmer Bingham, Milton; John Telch, Clinton; Albert Austin, Janesville; Elmer Egan, Broadhead; Howard Henke, Janesville, Rte. 1; Wallace Austin, Janesville, Route 1; Dewey Jones, Janesville, Route 1; Claude Miller, Janesville, Rte. 10; Harold Klumeyer, Evansville; Fred Miller, Janesville, Rte. 5; Albert Schidmore, Janesville, Rte. 7; Ellis Douglas, Janesville, Route 7; Roy Kramer, Clinton; Charles Courtney, Janesville, Rte. 7; Adam Clark, Atton; Fred Behling, Clinton, Rte. 35; Maurice Thompson, Edgerton; Gerald Sayre, Milton; Burton Hooper, Beloit, Rte. 29; Earl Davis, Milton; Roy Miller, Milton; Elmer Titus, Milton Junction; Donald Campbell, Evansville.

FRANCES ERDMAN, MARRIED TO WILLIAM BRANDENBURG
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Orfordville, March 13.—A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erdman in West Center Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, when Miss Frances Erdman was united in marriage to William Brandenburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Brandenburg. Rev. Mueger of Lake Geneva performed the ceremony.

The bridesmaids were Miss Florence Brandenburg, sister of the groom, and Miss Ida Lindemann, cousin of the groom. The groomsmen were, Harry Erdman and William Friebe, brother and uncle of the groom.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Rev. Mueger and Gustave Wrase of Lake Geneva; Mrs. Friebe and daughter, Dorothy of West Point, Iowa; Mrs. Elsie Hillen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rohrer of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Lindemann and family of Beloit; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Teubert, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hell, George Lemke and friend, all of Janesville; Mr. and Mrs. August Wilke of Beloit; Mr. and Mrs. Ches-

New Type of Stage Heroine.—May Robson in "Martha-by-the-Day" Impersonates Charwoman Character.

Our industrious American playwrights are reaching far these days for types around which to weave plots of comedy or tragedy. A quarter of a century ago, if the stage hero was not a scion of nobility, he was of the

They are not confined to German operations alone, however, and there is no disposition to minimize or cover up the effects of the 42-centimeter guns, which are shown in action, or the efficiency of the barbed wire entanglements or other strategic manipulations of warfare. The horror of war creeps in, of course, though there is no effort made to feature any particular phase of the conflict. In plain terms the picture gives a straightforward scenic story of the war in its varying phases. Scenes taken in Russia years ago; these are the things which the photographer shows perfectly in a picture, appealing to the aesthetic susceptibilities through the eye. The exposure, lighting, development of the prints has been superb. In this respect "Mignon" takes the highest possible rank.

"The Italian" a Notable Picture. "The Italian" is a happy, that master work of the man who made "The Wrath of the Gods," "The Typhoon," "The Bargain" and other recent photoplays was completed recently when the last strip of film was assembled and, in five reels of a well-inspiring photography, it will be presented at the Apollo on Wednesday.

Never, perhaps, since he began his career as a producer has Thomas H. Ince thrown such a rare combination of artistic skill and expense into a drama of the screen. The picture is a masterpiece of the studios of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, at Inceville, Cal. That, at least, is what the critics in all likelihood will say when they review the piece. Embracing in its manufacture the employment of more than 300 people, thousands of dollars' worth of scenery and costumes, nearly 20,000 feet of film and the appearance, in a stellar capacity, of America's greatest character artist, George Beeghan—the production stands ready to undergo the supreme test—the critical eye of the motion picture public.

Guy Bates Post in "Omar, the Tentmaker."

The rarest and most valuable display of oriental rugs ever seen upon the stage will be the property of the spectacular Persian love-play by Richard Walton Tully in which Guy Bates Post will appear at the Myers Theatre for one night, Monday, March 22. They were purchased in the Orient by Mr. Tully especially for use in "Omar, the Tentmaker." Mr. Tully has made a specialty of spectacular drama, and won exceptional laurels for himself in the field. Besides "Omar, the Tentmaker," Mr. Tully is the author of "The Bird of Paradise" and "The Rose of the Rancho," two great successes of both of these having been surpassed by his latest effort. An enchanting musical setting, especially composed by the well-known Californian musician, Anita Baldwin, is a pleasing feature of "Omar, the Tentmaker."

FAIR ISADORE WILL DANCE FOR GOTHAM

Famous Bare Toe Dancer Changes Her Attitude Against the Americans When Dollars Begin to Show.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, March 13.—Isadora Duncan, who spells art with a capital A, has changed her attitude toward America. There was a time, not so many months ago, that the classical dancer felt annoyed, even peeved, at the attitude of this nation toward her efforts. But now things are changed.

Isador has begun to think that the poor people of America should have a chance to watch her classic, toe in barefoot poses. She and her "school" are going to appear at the Century Opera House this spring at popular prices—a dime for the gallery and so on up to half a dollar for the highest priced seats—for an entire month. She made the announcement the other night at the Metropolitan.

High art stuff reminds one that Granville Barker is going to build another New Theater. The London producer has been given the commission to revive his old project and the coin, it is said, has been pledged. Barker plans to give his productions in the great universities this spring. He says he isn't considering the profits—perhaps there won't be any to consider.

"The Peasant Girl" opened her engagement at the Forty-Fourth street theatre the other night, with Emma Trentini singing better than ever before. The opera is another one of those musical things with lots of color, with a plot that begins over on the Blue Danube.

drawing room variety, and the heroines were mostly of the willowy type, ladies to the manner born. An Irish maid, if there was one in the play, had a couple of lines, or if the play was musically treated, she sang a song and danced a jig, but never was she glorified by being made the central figure of the offering. But today we are living in the age of types, as far as the theatre is concerned. The main interest of the modern play is just as likely to be centered in a charwoman as it is to revolve about a debutante of upper Fifth avenue.

This condition actually occurs in Julie M. Lippmann's comedy, "Martha-by-the-Day," which brings May Robson to Myers Theatre next Thursday, March 17.

Martha, Slawson, in the Lippmann play, is a product of New York City, who to assist in the upkeep of her growing family, goes out by the day to do housework, and from this fact the comedy gains its title. However, Martha is a most unusual scrubwoman. She has a rare amount of common sense, and is not backward in offering her advice to both equals and superiors. She is voluble of speech and comments sagely upon pertinent topics.

Of children she says: "Everything's gotter be trained these days, specially children. A trained looter's good for 'em, but a trained mother's better. Somebody who loves 'em an' understands 'em, and has the nerve to chastise 'em."

On love her practical mind expresses itself as follows: "When you are dressmaking you have to allow for the seams, and when you are making love you have to do the same. Most people don't do it, and that's where a lot of trouble comes in."

She weighs men as children. "It ain't good for their healths to let the man-specie know too much. It makes 'em heady. They don't want you to think they are, but the truth is, men's simple little fellows. You want to be careful what you put on their plates. My plan is, cut it up fine and take out all the grizzle an' feed it to 'em slow, 'til they swallow it without gulping, while you amuse 'em with other things."

Lydia finished, she knew not why. There was a sting to the words, despite the languidness with which they were uttered.

Risking more than she suspected, she said: "He never considers the cost of a thing, Mrs. Brood, if he beauty appeals to him." Mrs. Brood gave her a quizzical, half-puzzled look. "You have only to look about you for the proof. This one room represents a fortune." The last was spoken hastily.

"How old are you, Miss Desmond?" The question came abruptly.

"I am nineteen."

"You were surprised to find me so young. Will it add to your surprise if I tell you that I am ten years older than you?"

"It doesn't seem credible."

"Are you wondering why I tell you my age?"

"Yes," said Lydia, bluntly.

"In order that you may realize that I am ten years wiser than you, and that you may not again make the mistake of underestimating my intelligence."

The color faded from Lydia's face. She grew cold from head to foot. Involuntarily she moved back a pace. The next instant, to her unbounded surprise, Mrs. Brood's hands were outstretched in a gesture of appeal, and a quick, wistful smile took the place of the imperious stare.

"There! I am a nasty, horrid thing. Forgive me. Come! Don't be stubborn. Shake hands with me and say that you're sorry I said what I did."

It was a quaint way of putting it, and her voice was so genuinely appealing that Lydia, after a moment's hesitation, extended her hands. Mrs. Brood grasped them in hers and gripped them tightly. "I think I should like to know that you are my friend, Lydia. Has it occurred to you that I am utterly without friends in this great city of yours? I have my husband, that is all."

The girl could no more withstand the electric charm of the woman than she could have fought off the sunshine. She was bewildered, and completely fascinated.

"It's—it's very good of you," she murmured, her own eyes softening as they looked into the deep, velvety ones that would not be denied. Even as she wondered whether she could ever really like this magnetic creature, she felt herself surrendering to the spell of her. "But perhaps you will not like me when you know me better."

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Brood, calmly, almost indifferently, and dismissed the subject. "What an amazing room! One can almost feel the presence of the geni that created it at the wish of the man with the enchanted lamp."

As a rule, oriental rooms are abominable, but this—ah, this is not an oriental room after all. It is a part of the East itself—of the real East. I have sat in emperors' houses out there, my dear, and I have slept in the palaces of kings. I have seen just such things as these, and I know that they could not have been transported to this room except by magic. My husband is a magician."

"These came from the palaces of kings, Mrs. Brood," said Lydia enthusiastically. "Kings in the days when kings were real. This rug—"

"I know," interrupted the other. "My husband told me the story. It must have cost him a fortune."

"It was worth a fortune," said Lydia. A calculating squint had come into Mrs. Brood's eyes while she was speaking. To Lydia it appeared as if she were trying to fix upon the value of the wonderful carpet.

"A collector has offered him—how much? A hundred thousand dollars, is not that it? Ah, how rich he must be!"

"The collector you refer to—"

"I was referring to my husband," said Mrs. Brood, unabashed. "He is very rich, isn't he?"

Lydia managed to conceal her annoyance. "I think not, as American fortunes are rated."

"It doesn't matter," said the other, carelessly. "I have my own fortune. And it is not my face," she added, with a quick smile. "Now let us look further. I must see all these wonderful things. We will not be missed, and it is still half an hour till tea-time. My husband is now telling his son all there is to be told about me—who and what I am, and how he came to marry me. Not, mind you, how I came to marry him, but—the other way round. It's the way with men past middle age."

Lydia hesitated before speaking. "Mr. Brood does not confide in Frederick?" she repeated, in the form of a question. Her voice seemed lower than before.

"I'm sorry I spoke as I did, Mrs. Brood," said the girl, annoyed at herself.

"Is there a reason why he should dislike his son?" asked the other, regarding her fixedly.

"Of course not," cried poor Lydia. "There was a moment of silence. 'Some day, Lydia, you will tell me about Mr. Brood's other wife.'"

"She died many years ago," said the girl, evasively.

"I know," said Mrs. Brood. "Still I should like to hear more of the woman he could not forget in all these years—until he met me."

She grew silent and preoccupied, a slight frown marking her forehead as she resumed her examination of the room and its contents.

Great lanterns hung suspended beside the shrine, but were now unlighted. On the table at which Brood professed to work stood a huge lamp with a lacelike screen of gold. When lighted a soft, mellow glow oozed through the shade to create a circle of golden brilliance over a radius that extended but little beyond the edge of the table, yet reached to the benign countenance of Buddha close by.

Over all this fairylike splendor reigned the serene, melting influence of the god to whom James Brood was wont to confess himself! The spell of the golden image dominated everything.

In the midst of the magnificence moved the two women, one absurdly out of touch with her surroundings, yet a thing of beauty; the other blending intimately with the warm tones that enveloped her. She was little, sinuous with the grace of the most seductive of dancers. Her dark eyes reflected the mysteries of the Orient; her pale, smooth skin shone with the clearness of alabaster; the crimson in her lips was like the fresh stain of blood; the very fragrance of her person seemed to steal out of the unknown. She was a part of the marvelous setting, a gem among gems.

She had attired herself in a dull Lillian red afternoon gown of chiffon. The very fabric seemed to cling to her supple body with the sensuous joy of contact. Even Lydia, who watched her with appraising eyes, experienced a swift unaccountable desire to hold this intoxicating creature close to her own body.

There were two windows in the room, "broad openings that ran from near the floor almost to the edge of the canopy. They were so heavily curtained that the light of day failed to penetrate to the interior of the apartment. Mrs. Brood approached one of these windows. Drawing the curtain apart, she let in an ugly gray light from the outside world.

She looked down into a sort of courtyard and garden that might have been transplanted from distant Arabia. Uttering an exclamation of wonder, she turned to Lydia.

"Is this New York or am I bewitched?"

"Mr. Brood transformed the old carriage yard into a—I think Mr. Dawes calls it a Persian garden. It is rather bleak in winter-time, Mrs. Brood, but in the summer it is really enchanting. See, across the court on the second floor where the windows are lighted, those are your rooms. It is an enormous house, you'll find. Do you see the little balcony outside your windows, and the vines creeping up to it? You can't imagine how sweet it is of a summer night with the moon and stars."

"But how desolate it looks today, with the dead vines and the colorless stones! Ugh!"

She dropped the curtains. The soft warm glow of the room came back and she sighed with relief. "I hate things that are dead," she said.

At the sound of a soft tread and the gentle rustle of draperies, they turned. Ranjab, the Hindu, was crossing the room toward the small door which gave entrance to his closet. He paused for an instant before the image of Buddha, but did not drop to his knees as all devout Buddhists do. Mrs. Brood's hand fell lightly upon Lydia's arm. The man turned toward them a second or two later. His dark, handsome face was hard set and emotionless as he bowed low to the new mistress of the house. The fingers closed tightly on Lydia's arm. Then he smiled upon the girl, a glad smile of devotion. His swarthy face was transfigured. A moment later he unlocked his door and passed into the other room. The key turned in the lock with a slight rasp.

"I do not like that man," said Mrs. Brood. Her voice was low and her eyes were fixed steadily on the closed door.

CHAPTER V.

Husband and Wife.

The ensuing fortnight brought the expected changes in the household. James Brood, to the surprise of not only himself but others, lapsed into a curious state of adolescence. His infatuation was complete. The once dominant influence of the man seemed to sink away from him as the passing days brought up the new problems of life. Where he had lived to command he now was content to serve. His friends, his son, his servants viewed the transformation with wonder, not to say apprehension.

It would not be true to say that the remarkable personality of the man had suffered. He was still the man of steel, but retempered. The rigid broadsword was made over into the fine flexible blade of Toledo. He could be bent but not broken.

It pleased him to submit to Yvonne's commands. Not that they were arduous or peremptory; on the contrary, they were suggestions in which his own comfort and pleasure appeared to be the inspiration. She was too wise to demand, too clever to resort to cajolery. She was a Latin. Diplomacy was hers as a birthright. Complaints, appeals, sulks would have gained nothing from James Brood. Nor would it have occurred to her to employ these methods. From the day she entered the house she was its mistress.

There were no false notions of sentiment to restrain or restrict her in the rearrangement of her household. She went about the matter calmly, sensibly, firmly; even the most prejudiced could not but feel the justice of her decisions. The serene way in which she both achieved and accepted conquest proved one thing above all others: She was born to rule.

To begin with, she miraculously transferred the sleeping quarters of Messrs. Dawes and Riggs from the second floor front to the third floor back without arousing the slightest sign of antagonism on the part of the crusty old gentlemen, who had occupied one of the choice rooms in the house with uninterrupted security for a matter of nine or ten years. Mrs. Brood explained the situation to them so graciously, so convincingly, that they even assisted the servants in moving their heterogeneous belongings to the small, remote room on the third floor, and applauded her plan to make a large sitting-room of the chamber they were deserting. It did not occur to them for at least three days that they had been imposed upon, cheated, maltreated, insulted, and then it was too late. The decorators were in the big room on the second floor.

They had been betrayed by the wife of their bosom friend. Is it small cause for wonder, then, that the poor gentlemen as manfully turned back to the tittle and got gloriously, garrulously drunk in the middle of the afternoon and also in the middle of the library, where tea was to have been served to a few friends asked in to meet the bride?

The next morning a fresh edict was issued. It came from James Brood and it was so staggering that the poor gentlemen were loath to believe their ears. As a result of this new command, they began to speak of Mrs. Brood in the privacy of their own rooms as "that woman." Of course it was entirely due to her mischievous, malevolent influence that a spineless husband put forth the order that they were to have nothing more to drink while they remained in his house. This command was modified to a slight extent later on. Brood felt sorry for the victims. He loved them and he knew that their pride was injured a great deal more than their appetite. In its modified form, the edict allowed them a small drink in the morning and another at bedtime, but Jones, the butler, held the key to the situation and the sideboard. And after that they looked upon Mrs. Brood as the common enemy of all three.

The case of Mrs. John Desmond was disposed of in a summary but tactful manner.

"If Mrs. Desmond is willing to remain, James, as housekeeper instead of friend, all well and good," said Mrs. Brood, discussing the matter in the seclusion of her boudoir. "I doubt, however, whether she can descend to that. You have spoiled her, my dear."

He flushed. "I trust you do not mean to imply that—"

"I should like to have Mrs. Desmond as my friend, not as my housekeeper," said his wife simply.

"By jove, and that's just what I should like," he cried.

"There is but one way, you know." "She must be one or the other, eh?" "Precisely," she said with firmness.

"In my country, James, the wives of best friends haven't the same moral standing that they appear to have in yours. Oh, don't scowl so! Shall I tell you that I do not mean to reflect on Mrs. Desmond's virtue or discretion? Far from it. If she is to be my friend, she cannot be your housekeeper. That's the point. Has she any means of her own? Can she—"

"She has a small income, and an annuity which I took out for her soon after her poor husband's death. We were the closest of friends—"

"I understand, James. You are very generous and very loyal. I quite understand. Losing her position here, then, will not be a hardship?"

"No," said he soberly.

"I am quite competent, James," she said brightly. "You will not miss her, I am sure."

They were gazing out of the window of the Pullman car. The thin man was rapturously admiring the sunset. "Ah, Nature is a real artist," exclaimed the thin man, addressing the fat man who sat in the opposite seat. "Have you never gazed at her wonders? Have you never watched the lambent flame of dawn life leaping across the dome of the world? Have you never been drawn by the ragged, raven's wing, sky-phantoms as they blotted out the pale moon? Have you never felt the amazement of those things?"

"Not since I swore off," replied the fat man, as he prepared to hunt another seat.

In Washington there is a club where playing cards for money and various other things are forbidden. But on one occasion recently four friends who wished to have a quiet game of bridge decided that there would be no harm in a slight departure from the regulations.

Having found a retired corner, they had commenced to play, when one of them noticed that a waiter who was near was observing them. Wishing to avoid further disclosure, he called the waiter and said: "William, I know you will not consider it your duty to inform against us. I presume that before now you have seen the rules broken."

"Sir," said the waiter, gravely. "I have been in the service of this club for some years, but have never yet given any such information, although I have seen all the rules broken but one."

"And what is that one rule?" "That of feeling the waiters, sir." He got his tip.

A Medical Book Free

By Dr. N. A. Goddard

Modern Methods of treating Chronic Diseases without Operation, has just come from the pen of Dr. Goddard the Milwaukee Specialist and is one of the most interesting as well as instructive little books the doctor has ever written.

If you are a sufferer from Appendicitis, Rupture, Gall Stone, Colic, Goitre or Chronic diseases of a private nature, you should avail yourself of his offer to send you this valuable little book free simply for the asking. A postal will bring it to you, in a plain wrapper. Many so-called surgical diseases have been proven to be curable by medical treatment, more safely, more easily and cheaply by modern medical methods than was believed possible a few years ago.

After you have read this little book, you can consult Dr. Goddard on his monthly visits to Janesville, free of charge and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have secured the expert opinion of a reputable specialist in these matters. If you have been advised to submit to an operation, surely do not fail to consult him before undergoing such an operation. His advice may save you many weeks of suffering, loss of time and expense, possibly your life. Dr. Goddard will be at the Grand Hotel, Janesville, Wednesday, March 24, and he makes no charge for a friendly visit. Hours 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Seed From Corn Found In a Mound Buried Two Thousand Years Ago To Be Planted.

Wonderful Seed Found in Prehistoric Mound in Colorado Raise Strange Species Of Maize That Grows to Enormous Height

During the coming summer there will be grown in Rock county and at the experimental station at the state university a species of corn that has been extinct for over two centuries. Fifty-four kernels of this precious seed have been received by the Gazette and distributed to various persons with the distinct pledge that the largest ear of corn raised from the seed is to be returned to the Gazette office for further experiment. But to go back a bit in the history of centuries. Corn, in the accepted sense of the word, was not known to the world, the Europe and Asia of today, until Christopher Columbus had crossed the Atlantic in search of a short passage to the Indies and discovered the great American continent. For years, almost a hundred after that, for Columbus landed in 1492 in the islands now known as the West Indies, the fact that the natives used corn as a food was not appreciated by the Europeans.

We find the Jamestown settlers, who landed in Virginia in 1607, writing back home of the Indian maize, a species of grain unknown to Europe at that time. They told of the fields planted by their red neighbors and ears in all, and were found in Colorado by a United States exploring expedition eight or nine years ago. Alexander J. W. Copelin, of Chicago, received one of the ears and gave some of the seed to friends and the present seed came from crops raised by him. It was presented to the Gazette, fifty-four grains in all, and all has been parceled out, the university experimental station at the state university being given some for special growth and treatment and others to persons who will plant them and care for them carefully. One ear from crop is to be returned to the Gazette for future distribution.

Just what tribe of Indians, mound builders, Asteas or what sort of prehistoric people inhabited the country where these seven original ears of corn were found, is not known. That they had reached an advanced stage of civilization is certain because of the fact the box which sealed the corn buried so long was of a material like cement, which we know was used by prehistoric people long before the foot of the white man landed on the soil of America. Being found, as it was, in Colorado, it is a safe hazard to state that it was either a cliff dweller's or an As-how they dug in the earth with a twisted stick planted the kernels and in due time harvested the grain, which grew on large stalks, unlike anything found in England. How anything grew between stones and made bread of it as did the English people of the wheat and other grains, and the Scotch of the oatmeal.

Mr. Alexander J. W. Copelin and His Little Field of Corn Which Grew to a Height of 18 Feet.

There is no question that maize or Indian corn, the progenitor of the corn crops of today, with their hundreded bushels to an acre as demonstrated in the last corn contest in Rock county, is one of the products of this western world. In fact, writers of early periods of our nation's history describe the corn plantings of the various Indian villages and wonder. Seeds from these wonderful growths were introduced in Europe at the same time as the use of tobacco, and as a result vast fields of corn are today grown on the continent.

The early settlers, both in Virginia and on the bleak coast of New England, adopted the Indian corn, or maize, as an article of food and cultivated it. It is doubtful if in the state of cultivation that was given by the Indians it reached the development that it does today, for we are told by scientists that the first ears of corn were what might be termed "bushy" of today, but that it flourished greatly in various soils, was easily cared for after planting and looked after by the squaws of the warriors who did all the menial duties.

These particular grains of corn that have reached Rock county are in color fairly regular, indented like some of the various breeds of the crops of today, but have a peculiar taste, we are told. Later this can be verified if the present planting propagates and bear harvest. Indian writers tell us that it was customary in many tribes to bury with the body of the dead, food enough to last them to the "Happy Hunting Grounds." It is well as their weapons of chase, their dog and horse. Consequently it is not surprising to discover in many Indian mounds opened near Janesville, particularly at Lake Koshong, remains of articles of the chase and even receptacles that might have contained the supply of food.

These particular grains of corn received by the Gazette are part of the third crop grown from seed discovered in an ancient Indian mound known to have been built some two thousand years ago. They were in a chest or box made of material similar to the cement of today, seven

Quality Compare Prices

The Goodrich Tire,
like the trained athlete is all brawn
and muscle—no fat

THE old Olympic Game promoters were great for what we call "form." Symmetry, proportion, soundness and proper balance out-bid bulging muscles for favor—yes, and out-won, too, just as they will today.

More bulk never was synonymous with endurance—and the truth of this statement drives home with a bang, when you apply it to tires.

If thick, heavy tires were the last word in tire construction, we could wipe out of existence a Goodrich Research and Test Department employing seventy people. We would take off the road a battalion of ten automobiles, that run twenty-four hours a day and every day in the year, grinding tires of all makes to pieces, just for the sake of information to us and eventual economy to the user of Goodrich Tires.

There is where we learn to cut out of a tire the material which gets the user nothing.

Of course, when we stripped tire price lists of their padding—fictitious values—we expected rivals to say we had stripped our tires.

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES
		"A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	9.45	10.55	10.95	16.35	18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

It was their only "come-back." They had to say that, in stripping down prices to the point where they were fair to dealer and consumer and left no room for injurious price-cutting tactics, we had stripped our tires of some quality, too.

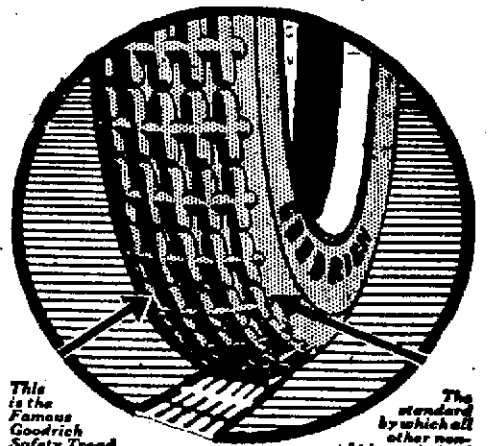

THE Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete, is all brawn and muscle—no fat. It represents an achievement—the ability to cut out the extra costs of manufacture, the extra costs of labor, of extra, needless material, and to give you the best, long-mileage, high-standard tire in the world.

There are padded tires as well as padded price lists.

Don't pay for padding. Now don't forget this—we are talking in the main about Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, for they represent ninety per cent of our factory output for resale.

Furthermore, while we have put the padded prices on smooth tread tires on the run, the evil of padded prices on non-skid tires still is in evidence, as shown in table below:

CATARRH LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Catarrh is as much a blood disease as scrofula or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but it cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It breaks down the general health, weakens the lung tissues, and leads to consumption.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is so successful in the treatment of catarrh that it is known as the best remedy for this disease. It purifies the blood. Ask your druggist for it.

Now is the time to get rid of any household article you do not wish to store or have no use for.

MINISTERS ENGAGE IN HOT TILT WITH BOXING ADVOCATES

Urge Repeal of Hedding Law and Call Boxing Demoralizing
Agency to Society.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 13.—Ministers of the gospel and enthusiasts over boxing contests had a fiery debate before the assembly committee on state affairs yesterday afternoon over the repeal of the law which prohibits boxing contests for a person to participate in or attend a boxing contest. The city of Madison furnished the most material used by the speakers who asked for the repeal of the law. The boxing contests were denounced as a "disgrace to the state," a "gambling proposition" and a "demoralizing agency to society." They were lauded by other speakers as "a clean athletic contest attended by orderly people," "an inspiration to courage" and as a "lamer sport than football."

Appearing for the repeal of the law was Assemblyman Julius Hanson of Shawano and W. C. Bradley of Hudson. Rev. George J. Hunt, Rev. W. J. McKay and Rev. E. G. Updike of Madison; C. H. West, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; L. H. Keller, representing the Federation of Wisconsin churches and W. B. Webster of Hudson, a senior in the law school, also came before the committee. Mr. Webster told the committee of how 7,000 people from St. Paul and Minneapolis invaded the city of Madison, and declared that "a large part of those who came were from the lower strata of society." He said that although the saloons were stocked up in advance, liquor was sold out and business places were broken into. He said that the little city with two policemen could not cope with the situation and advised the committee to furnish the use of militia, then similar bouts are to be held. He said that "all respectable citizens have to stay home on those nights to guard their doors." Rev. McKay said that he represented forty different church denominations, with an aggregate membership of about 1,000,000 people in Wisconsin, who were opposed to the present law and desired it repealed. Rev. Updike said that these contests "open the doors to brutality, and the worst elements in the state." F. H. West thought that Wisconsin was being made a dumping ground for the worst elements in other states. Mr. Keller said that the boxing law did not express the standard of moral life in Wisconsin. He declared that it was a "scheme to popularize barbarism."

Hedding Defends Boxing.
Assemblyman A. J. Hedding of Milwaukee, who introduced the law in the last legislature, defended the bill. He said that the contests had been clean and that "there is just as much logic to abolish baseball and football as there is boxing." He said that things did not meet with his approval at Hudson, but that the commission did not have the power to revoke the license of the Hudson club. He declared that he favored an amendment to his law which would give the commission that power.

"The principle of personal liberty should have some consideration," said Assemblyman Hedding. The best men of Wisconsin attend these contests. In all of the contests held in Milwaukee there has not been an arrest made on the night of a contest there. This does not look as though it was only the scum who attended." F. M. Johnson of the Milwaukee Hotel Men's association told the committee that similar bills were approaching enactment in the states of Illinois, Minnesota and New Jersey, and that these would have athletic commissions. He said that the morale of the men who attended the contests was above the average.

Contests Orderly.

"These contests are more orderly than the republican and democratic conventions," said Charles Thompson of Milwaukee. J. B. Keenan, secretary of the Milwaukee Businessmen's league, said that there was no brutal, controlled contests. Guy F. Gregg of the athletic club said that the Henderson bill would even prohibit amateur contests. Assemblyman Hedding said that the trouble with the reformers was that they never dig down to the bottom and get facts. He said there had been 800 fights in the state and not an injury. Chairman W. H. Lippinger, in answer to questions, told the committee that no attempt had been made to hold a prize fight and that these contests could not be so classed. "If any man thinks that Chief Janssen would permit a prize fight in Milwaukee he doesn't know the chief of police," declared Mr. Lippinger. Janssen would as soon let a man break into a Catholic church and steal the Holy water to make highballs as to permit a prize fight."

ABE AND MAWRUSS IN MIRTH-PROVOKING COMEDY LAST NIGHT

Many a Laugh From Large Audience Demonstrates That Comedy Was of the Best Order.

Montague Glass' famous characters, "Abe" Potash and "Mawruss" Perlmutter, who are so familiar to readers of The Saturday Evening Post, were seen in real life at the Myers Theatre last evening. The sort of comedy which runs through-out the piece was a welcome relief after seasons of the so-called "problem" plays and the light musical comedy creations. The story deals with the ups and downs of two partners in the cloak and suit business in New York City. The rare humor of Montague Glass is evident in every passage between the two partners, who are constantly warring among themselves, but there is enough human interest and pathos mingled with the comedy to make "Potash and Perlmutter" linger long in the memory of those who witnessed it last evening.

The various parts were each ably delineated by the members of the cast which was exceptionally well balanced. Lew Welch as "Mawruss" and Jules Jordan as "Abe" were most effective in portraying the characters of the ambitious partners, giving intimate glimpses of just what one would expect to see in real life in New York City. In no instance was their work overdone.

The first act, showing the old office of the firm, started with a rush and carried the audience with it. The second and third acts went along as quickly and were handled well. The auditors did not hesitate to show their approval and at times the house fairly shook from the laughter. Other members of the cast who were largely responsible for its success were, Edward Shorin, as Mark Pinsky, a buyer of furs; Thomas T. as Lawyer Feldman; Joseph Sterling as the persecuted Russian; Jane Fearnley as Ruth Goldman, Katherine Barry as Mrs. Potash.

The attraction was a most unusual success here as it has been elsewhere. Hundreds of people were turned away from the box office, unable to secure seats. People like this kind of a show and its funny lines will be long remembered.

The Sales Possibilities of Gazette Want Ads Are Many

Don't say that what you have to sell can not be sold through the little, low priced want ads of the Gazette.

The saying that nothing is impossible in this day and age is most strongly illustrated by the results obtained through the advertisements on this page.

A typewriter is sold by a Janesville business man in Sullivan, Wis.; bird houses are sold by a boy; a better home is secured by a family after a fruitless walk over the entire city; a farm is sold to a distant buyer; a house is rented after a sign had failed to produce even an inquiry; etc., etc.

NEED FOR YOUNG MEN

Men Who Have Become Voters Since 1906 Not Control Political Affairs of State and Nation.
(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, March 13.—There was a political dinner at the Pfister Hotel, last Saturday night, that is worthy of more public attention than it has received. It was, in the common parlance of the day, a "get-together" Republican entertainment, and, as an unquestionably sincere effort, it is entitled to respectful and, I am inclined to think, sympathetic treatment. Fully 400 attended, and John Hays Hammond with a typical address, and a second gentleman named Hill moved the painted scenery and worked the sheet-iron thunder, to arouse the spirit of a Republican party that is as dead as the Pharaohs.

Don't Reach Young Men. I asked a life-long Republican, a big business man and financier, one who would be classed as a Stalwart, what he thought of the evening, expressed distinct disappointment. The quiet that followed the effort indicates that his opinion is general. I have no disposition to criticize. My feeling is addressed to the conservative Republican leaders. Think that the mistakes of Moses are a present day issue. Such men as I talked last Saturday night and cannot appreciate that it takes a man of at least 40 years of age to understand what they are talking about, give unmistakable evidence of their political conditions. The man must be reached to arouse an interest in staying the march of public extravagance and warding off state socialism. They govern Wisconsin and the nation, if they vote. Unfortunately, a great number fail to vote or take an interest in politics. There is hope, however, for them, for they are active business men, farmers, and property owners, and their responsibility is increasing daily. But they are not going to bother to understand a policy that tries out against high taxes in Wisconsin, and for high protective tariff rates at Washington. They are not to see the young men interested in activity to meet the rising tide of socialism which threatens them. They should be reached by the issue that the same spirit that claims the state ownership of public utilities is slowly working to confiscate private property in factories, and farms, and goods, by a system of taxation that is steadily progressing toward a single tax. Government ownership will not stop at big utilities and big business, it will reach the small business, and the small man will find it will not avail to meet such a present danger with the ancient bows and arrows of a past generation.

In a Proof of Recklessness. In this connection, I want to call marked attention to the late decision of the Supreme Court of this state in the forest conservation case, which goes to a good many fundamental questions of state government. There is not space here to properly discuss its gravity and importance. The opinion is by Justice Marshall, and he has gone after false doctrine with a sledge-hammer. I see only one culpable error in his statements. I mean an error of judgment, not of fact. He has ven- state certificates upon each Wisconsin is paying 7% interest on the school funds, constitute a state debt in excess of $1,000,000. He must have overlooked the statement of Dr. McCarthy, our governor, not long ago, that Wisconsin has no state debt. But perhaps we ought not to expect our highest court to keep up with the veritable doctor. This decision gives an arm and a disc in detail, of the recklessness of our present state governments of all constitutional or legal restraints. In a few years the schools would have had no lands, and the revenues of the state from general taxation would, in addition, have been flowing in a steady stream to a project for conserving our forests for robbed and uneducated children. The entire enterprise seems to be ex- hibited as an illustration of maladministration that is so flagrant as to make it difficult to charge a charge of deliberate malfeasance, or of the various and numerous officers and officers to despoil the state of trust funds, and trust funds, and divert both to unlawful purposes.

Suggestions to Y. W. C. A. Miss Blanche Geary of New York, national secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, spoke at a noon luncheon here, Tuesday, in an effort to help the local association to raise $11,000 and get out of the city. She made some sensible suggestions as to the conduct of association houses, that would excite surprise, though just what does not appear. One thing that she should have pointed out is that the student young women could obtain their company. And why not? Young women who live elsewhere expect to be able to receive their company, manner approaching that of a home, it seems not only a proper provision, but one that is requisite to a young woman's life. Y. W. C. A. should not be hedged by the rules of an exclusive sisterhood, if it is to do the good that it is intended to promote.

Court House Wrangle. The legislature is not in a passing half-baked legislation in a passing and unlawful manner. Milwaukee County has had a wrangle on the new court house, and it seems quite clear, a majority of the board has adhered, against very much opposition, to a plan to purchase a site for a new court house, and fully a mile from the city hall and other public buildings. The present ground was given to the city by Solomon Juneau and Morgan L. Martin for a court house site. It is a full block, well-situated, convenient to the cars, and within easy reach of the city hall. There is no apparent reason for a change of location, and many sound practical and sentimental reasons for sticking to a splendid site that has been dedicated to the city for more than half a century. After many meetings, the majority of the board proved their lack of clearness, the finish is amusing, though it may not be the outcome. The city attorney has made a study of the matter and found a new step taken toward buying a new site during the past eleven months, has been according to law. This new age of efficiency seems to have a lot of screws loose.

Railroad Conditions. The situation among the railroads of the country is reflected in the poor report coming from the Baldwin Locomotive Works and the car companies. No orders for railway equipment have been received in the past month. The Wall Street Journal says that 1914 was "a year that tried men's souls" in the equipment business. Eight companies showed a shrinkage in revenue of nearly $100,000,000, which was 55% falling off as compared with 1913, which certainly was not a boom year. This falling off runs through all the railroads, and it is about the same in the aggregate means thousands of idle men and millions of business shorthages. The railroads also reflect the general business conditions. We need not leave Milwaukee for the evidence. The local banks had about $11,000,000 more on deposit when they reported, this week, than they had the same time last year. This means so much more idle money that is earning its owners nothing. In the face of such facts, and these are not the worst that can be cited, it is about time that the able citizens who have the welfare of the community at heart to realize that their influence should be active on the side of public economy and sane legislation.

That Four Million. The investigators in Madison seem to be verifying the warnings of the states that unless wholesale repudiation of last session's appropriations is done, expenses and taxes will be higher this year than ever. This week it was discovered that for the purposes of last year's campaign, over $4,000,000 of appropriations were provided for. In last year's tax levy, with the result that they must be provided for this year, or the appropriations repealed. This indicates that all the estimates of last year's appropriations and expenses were low. If they had been provided for in the tax levy, expenditures for 1915 would have exceeded $20,000,000. Nobody knows what state expenses amount to, for Dr. McCarthy's charming device, "the continuing appropriation," the continuing appropriation, is a factor that may lift them millions any year. This may mean for saying that no man is competent to attack the problem of reducing expenses and abolishing commissions and the like, which is what the problem is. The joint legislative committee and Governor Philipp have already surprised themselves and everybody else, by their discoveries. The New York Times of March 6th publishes with its issue analyzing the results of last fall's elections throughout the country, as to constitutional amendments and other proposals that have been submitted to the people. The republic is led to remark, sadly, "Wisconsin, which used to be considered the most progressive state in the Union, is now a state of popular legislation. The analysis shows that the preponderance of the results of the elections were in favor of the advocates of half-trigger constitutions."

Lake Freight Prospects. The Erie Railroad Lake Line promises, as do the other regular lines, to have a better field this year than usual, for whatever the general conditions, and looks as if there would be a decrease in the number of vessels on the Great Lakes, owing to the demand for freight vessels on the Atlantic ocean. Canadian vessels, especially are being sent to the sea in considerable numbers. In view of this situation, the modern improvements in power and fuel saving devices that have been put into the Erie ships during the past three years, will enable this line to give a high class service, for speed will be an important factor. Besides their power, they make a continuous trip to Buffalo, and the only exception being that they stop at Fairport for connections with Pittsburgh. The prospect now is that the Erie Railroad Lake Line has a busy season ahead.

Golf in England. To continue on the subject of last week's sport paragraph, there seems to be a considerable discussion as to the exact status of golf in England during the present war. A golf authority states that the game is more crowded than ever. Men are playing it, he asserts, to stay fit in the army. He further says that no courses have been interfered with the military. But from time to time a penniless golf professional and on these shores with tales of no business, and even used for drilling, fortifications, etc., and of a general sentiment against "light minded sport" when England is in danger. Probably the actual state of affairs is between these conflicting statements.

Jobs. There may be a few easy jobs in the world, but it requires hard work to get them.—Toledo Blade.

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

(By Allen B. West.)

Question—I have some young apple trees that have been gnawed partly away around their trunks by mice or rabbits. What shall I do for them? How can such damage be prevented? Answer—If the injury is not more than three or four inches wide, and does not extend entirely around the trunk, it will heal over in one or two seasons. It is better, however, to assist in it by healing by covering the wound with grafting wax, or better, if the wound is low enough, to pile up the soil over it.

L. H. Bailey in his "Principles of Fruit Growing," says, "The best preventative of injuries from mice is to see that there is no material as dead grass or weeds, close to the base of the tree in which the rodents can nest. If the litter is not taken away it should at least be tramped down tightly before winter sets in."

Other horticulturists recommend a mound of earth about the trees. It is not likely that there will be any further injury from mice this season, but there may be. As to rabbits, Mr. Bailey says, "The best preventative of injury by rabbits is not to have the trees in the open places and old fence rows in which the animals harbor are cleaned away, there will commonly be little trouble." This may be a case of "Easier said than done." One must keep his own premises free from places offering shelter for rabbits and yet suffer damage from a neighbor's carelessness, for rabbits are not a bit particular about feeding on the plantation on which they find homes. In order to prevent rodents from gnawing the trunks one may put cylinders of wire netting about the trees, such as is used for window screens. If this is done, however, care must be taken to see that these cylinders do not accumulate rubbish and so by furnishing a snug home of the mice, defeat their purpose.

Question—When and how should tomato seed be planted?

Answer—March 20th is about the right time to start tomato seeds. If one has no hot-bed the seeds may be sown in shallow boxes, covered with a thin layer of earth and placed in a sunny window. In order to prevent the surface from drying and so hindering germination, it is well to place a thick piece of dark cloth over the earth. This should be kept moist and be removed when the seeds begin to show the white sprouts. When the plants get their second leaves they should be transplanted into separate boxes, pots or cans. The ordinary tin tomato can is about right for this. Put a layer of gravel or broken crickets in the bottom of the cans, fill with good garden soil made fine and make a small hole in the center and put in a little water. Into this hole put the tomato plant and fill about the plant with dry earth, setting the plant deep enough to just cover the seed leaves. Make the earth firm about the plant and then cover with more dry earth for a dust mulch. Set the plants in a shady place for a few days and then give them plenty of fresh air and sunshine. As the weather becomes warm enough they should be set out of doors during the day at least, protecting them at night if there is danger of frost. They should not be hardened in the garden until all danger from frost is past, but they should be made stocky and hardy by being out doors before time for setting into the ground. Be sure to plant some of the earliest ones are most prized in the vicinity, the early ones are about the only ones that will bring a satisfactory price. One should plant later varieties for the main crop.

TEN YEARS' MISERY ENDED. J. T. Chambers, merchant, Jonesboro, Ark., writes: "Foley Kidney Pills cured me of a ten-year standing case of rheumatism. I suffered miserably. A friend told me of being cured, so I used them, and they cured me, too." Most middle-aged men and women are glad to learn that Foley Pills afford a way to escape sleep-disturbing weakness, puffiness under eyes, stiff and swollen joints, and other ills attributed to kidney troubles.—W. T. Sheren.

CHANGE IN FIRM SALE

Mr. T. P. Burns, who for the past 28 years has conducted a successful exclusive Dry Goods Store in Janesville, has decided to make a change in the business which has for years past been known for Honest Treatment, Reliable Merchandise, and a Square Deal To All. A new partner will be taken into the concern to manage the Dry Goods Department, while Mr. Burns will continue to give his attention to the Women's Suit and Coat Department, also the Rugs and Carpets. Before the change takes place a GIGANTIC SALE OF THE MOST SWEEPING PRICE REDUCTIONS will be held on all Dry Goods, Suits, Carpets, Rugs, Lace Curtains, etc., etc. This sale means money-saving opportunities to each member of the family. The entire stock is placed on sale to effect a quick clearance of all lines, and to do this prices have been slashed right and
